Notes concerning standby time/talk time

Call time refers to the average continuous call time at maximum transmission power when the Battery Saving Mode is off. Standby time refers to the average continuous standby time when the phone is in transit and remains closed within an area where radio reception is good. In certain circumstances, call and standby times may drop to as low as half the times shown due to the battery charge, function settings, temperature or radio reception. Call/transmission and standby times will be less when you make i-mode transmissions. These times will also be less when you compose i-mode mail or run downloaded iappli, even without making calls or i-mode transmissions. Depending on the iappli software, transmission may continue after downloading. Settings can be made to prevent such connections.

Main Functions

- Application for i-mode Service is optional (charges apply).
- i-mode information charges may apply. %
- A mobile phone connection cable (sold by Sony Computer Entertainment Inc.) is required for connection to PlayStation, PS one or PlayStation 2.

- *1. SSL is a secure data transmission protocol for privacy protection.
- *2. Two hundred received mail can be saved and 5 of these can be mail with images.
- *3. Due to the nature of the N503i display, in some parts there are dots that usually light up and dots that do not (black dots). Please note that this is not a malfunction.
- *4. Hyper Talk is a DoCoMo Network Service that provides subscribers with better call quality. Hyper Talk is available when calling other Hyper Talk mobile phones, PHSs or ordinary phones; not available in certain circumstances.
- *5. Original melodies are recorded as up to 4-chord melodies with 1 - 4 instrumental rhythm parts.
- *6. Voice Recognition is not guaranteed under all conditions. Designed mainly for Japanese input.
- *7. Short Mail Service is not available for 503i, 502i and 821i series mobile phones. However, i-mode subscribers can receive Short Mail as i-mode mail without applying for Short Mail Service or paying monthly charges. Short Mail will not be received outside the i-mode service area but will be stored at the i-mode center.
